

CANNON AGAINST SAVING RESOURCES

Speaker Tells Chicago Bankers He Is "Agin" Conserving Aught But Coin.

"This is not a time," he said, "for the expenditure of large sums of money for the completion of the Panama canal. Discreet care should be used in the endeavor to build a deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf."

He said that great engineering problems were involved and that they might be better left to future generations. Newspapers, magazines, specialists, doctors, women's clubs, and school children, he said, signed memorials to Congress for the issuance of bonds for millions to be used in all sorts of plans. "Because I happen to be one Congress man who is in a position where my judgment is brought to bear on these subjects, some think I should be killed altogether."

He said that many people blamed him for opposition to reforestation of the Appalachian range. There is a question, he said, as to whether the nation had the police power to prevent the destruction of forests.

Doubts Police Power.

He said he thought that the police power remained with the State. He declared that there was also a question as to the advisability of reforestation and criticized magazines and newspapers for their articles on the waste of coal and timber. It reminded him, he said, of the boy who was requested by his teacher to figure out how long it would take a frog to jump out of a well if it fell back two feet when it jumped up one.

The magazine, he said, seemed to forget the quantities of undeveloped coal in the Rockies.

The completion of the Panama Canal, he declared, might come when the nation had reached 500,000,000 inhabitants. Transcontinental railroads might be completed, he thought, when the nation got to be one hundred or two hundred million. It would be a serious thing, he said, for the country to go ahead now and make mistakes.

What Democrats Need.

Referring to the campaign he said: "The campaign has demonstrated that Democracy has a great leader, but he has developed great opposition. Some day, a really great opposition to Republicanism will be developed, but it will be by a real Jeffersonian party."

He said that defeat had once come to the Republicans because they had a billion-dollar Congress in two years. The Government, he declared, was great and expensive, and now a billion-dollar Congress was the result.

Lewis, the next speaker, assured the club members that the Democrats would work in harmony with the Republicans for the welfare of the country. The Bankers' Club has about 200 members, most of whom are millionaires.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR HAS AMERICAN WIFE

Count Von Bernstorff, Successor to Von Sternburg, Has Envious Career in Diplomatic History of His Fatherland.

Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, news of whose appointment to become German ambassador to the United States the first of the year, reached Washington yesterday, like his predecessor, the late Baron Speck von Sternburg, has an American wife.

Countess von Bernstorff, formerly Miss Jennie Luckemeyer, was married to the German diplomat in 1887, twelve years before the count began his diplomatic career as attaché at Constantinople.

Although the official announcement of Count von Bernstorff's appointment by the Emperor William has not yet been made, it is known that the government will give out the news in a few days. The future ambassador to the United States was to have left Paris November 3 on his return to Cairo, where he has been stationed for two years as minister plenipotentiary. He did not leave, however, and when he does return to Cairo it will be to put his affairs in shape, for his successor there.

Count von Bernstorff was born in London in 1862, while his father Count Albrecht von Bernstorff, of whom he is the fourth son, was ambassador to the court of St. James.

After his first diplomatic service at Constantinople, in 1890, Count von Bernstorff was ordered to the foreign office at Berlin, where his advancement was rapid. He later served in the embassies at Belgrade, Dresden, St. Petersburg, and Munich. In 1902 he was made councillor and first secretary to the embassy at London, where he attracted the attention of Emperor William by his lucid dispatches and his conciliatory tact at the English court when there was much feeling against Germany.

The appointment to Egypt from the London post is a promotion in the German diplomatic service, and Count von Bernstorff's excellent work at Cairo won for him advancement from consul general to the rank of minister plenipotentiary some months ago.

The new ambassador and his American wife have two children—Alexandra, twenty-two years old, who made her debut in Cairo society two years ago, and Christian, seventeen years old, who is in school. Both children will come to Washington with their parents.

Count von Bernstorff's ancestor, Count Ernst von Bernstorff, founder of one branch of the family, also had an American wife, Amerika Reidesel, Baroness zu Eilsenbach, who was born in New York, in 1780.

When the daughter married Count von Bernstorff, the Luckemeyer family went to France to live, where the father of the countess died this year.

Count von Bernstorff is a tall, slender man, blond, with a drooping mustache, fluent in English, skilled in diplomacy, and an after-dinner speaker of note.

Although officials of the German embassy here have not yet received the official news, they make no denial of the facts as published.

AGED COUPLES HAVE DOUBLE WEDDING

Both Brides and Grooms Are Septuagenarians in London Marriage.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A double wedding in which both brides and both bridegrooms were septuagenarians is surely unique. Such an event was celebrated at Boxley Heath, a suburb of London, and the combined ages of the four contracting parties aggregated 298 years.

The four old people, who were all remarkably bright and active for their ages, were inmates of the Foresters' Home, an almshouse supported by the well-known friendly society.

Early in the morning the little party of four left the homes to walk the half mile, which separates them from the church. They were Timothy Barnett, a well-built old man with a gray mustache, formerly a fishing tackle maker, who was dressed in a black frock coat suit, and despite his seventy-eight years, carried himself quite jauntily.

EISELE RUNS RACE CLOSE TO RECORD

Olympia Games Contestant Goes Ten Miles in Brilliant Style.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—In as brilliant an exhibition of distance running, since the great Willie Day was cracking records, John Eisele, the sorrel-topped son of Uncle Sam, who made a game showing in the Olympia games in London, carried the colors of the N. Y. A. C. to victory in the annual 10-mile national championship race held at Celtic Park today.

John Daly, the wearer of the winged feet, who captured the title in 1906 and 1907, was beaten out for fourth position by Jimmy Lee, the flame-haired flyer of the Boston A. A., who after setting the pace for eight miles succumbed to the grueling going, running the last two miles on his nerve, and collapsing as he crossed the line.

Eisele covered the distance in 52:16 1-2. The American record for the distance is 52:35 2-5, and was made by William Day at Staten Island on October 26, 1893.

WEE SMALL HOURS TIME OF WEDDING

An automobile marriage party sped into Rockville early yesterday morning, and was well on its way back to Washington in a few minutes, the ceremony performed. It was the wedding of William R. White, of this city, and Miss Madeleine Barry, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas H. Campbell, of the Rockville Baptist Church.

Fast experiences, which led to the designation of Gretha Greenling as maid to Rockville, prevented 12:15, a night watchman at the court house, feeling any surprise when he found pounding on the door attracted his attention.

Learning from the caller that a wedding was the order of the morning, he hastened away for Darby Bones, one of the town clerks, Bones made out the marriage license, received his fee, and watched the auto whirl away toward the minister's house.

The party of young people missed the minister's house, and journeyed out into the country before discovering that a mistake had been made. The minister's residence was finally reached, however, and the ceremony performed. On the return trip to Washington the automobile was seen to be decked with white ribbons with which the friends of the young married couple had bedecked the car. In the party were four men and two young women.

WILLIAM D. CORNISH VICTIM OF APOPLEXY

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—William D. Cornish, fifty-six years old, of Orange, N. J., second vice president of the Union Pacific railroad lines, was found dead in bed at the Auditorium Annex today.

Mr. Cornish arrived in Chicago with his private secretary, L. H. Cornell, late yesterday afternoon and registered at the annex at 5:30 o'clock last evening. He and his private secretary attended a theater last night.

The decedent is thought to have been stricken with heart disease or apoplexy. The house physician at the annex said the victim had apparently been dead some time before the body was found.

Mr. Cornish was a director of the Leavenworth, Kansas, and Western railroad, the Northern Pacific Terminal Company of Oregon, the Oregon Pacific and Navigation Company, of which he was also vice president; the Portland and Astoria Steamship Company, the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad Company, the Southern Pacific railroad, of which he was president; the Spokane Union Depot Company; Union Pacific Land Company, of which he was president, and Wells Fargo & Co.

SLEIGHING IS GOOD IN NEW YORK STATE

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Wintry weather prevails in the northern Adirondacks. There is sleighing at Tupper Lake, Raquette Pond is frozen nearly across, and the Norwood pulp mill has been compelled to shut down on account of ice.

ANDREWS RESIGNS.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7.—At the meeting of the board of regents, Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews, of the University of Nebraska, tendered his resignation, to take effect on January 1.

NOBODY IS INJURED IN A PISTOL DUEL

UNIONVILLE, Conn., Nov. 7.—Albert A. Burnham, station agent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad here, had a pistol duel with a burglar early today, but neither was hit. Burnham, who was aroused in his house by the station alarm, found a man drilling at the safe door and fired at him.

The burglar returned the fire, and each emptied his revolver. The thief finally jumped through the window, taking the sash with him, and escaped.
